proactive governance.

Benefits of well-governed implementation

Repeatable and consistent service delivery

Administrative efficiency

Accurate cataloging & monitoring of adoption, usage and governance attributes for collaboration workspaces

Provable compliance with internal and external policies and regulatory requirements

Common “service delivery” concerns

For collaborative workspaces, customers want to govern:

How are Teams
requested, approved and created

Provisioning

How are availability, compliance and changes over time are managed

Management

How do I retain/expire/dispose of Teams as appropriate

Lifecycle

CONSIDERATIONS For Governing Groups and Teams

1. Who should be able to provision and create Office 365 Groups.
2. Managing access and ownership of groups.
3. What your retention policy should look like, including, saving archiving and deleting data.
4. How to best utilize Office 365 to reduce IT burden.
5. Determining which applications and services users should be allowed to use.
6. Structuring and enforcing properties and naming conventions for Groups.
7. Getting news about and preparing for new feature roll-outs.

Who should be able to provision and create
Office 365 Groups.

Considerations for the “Who”?

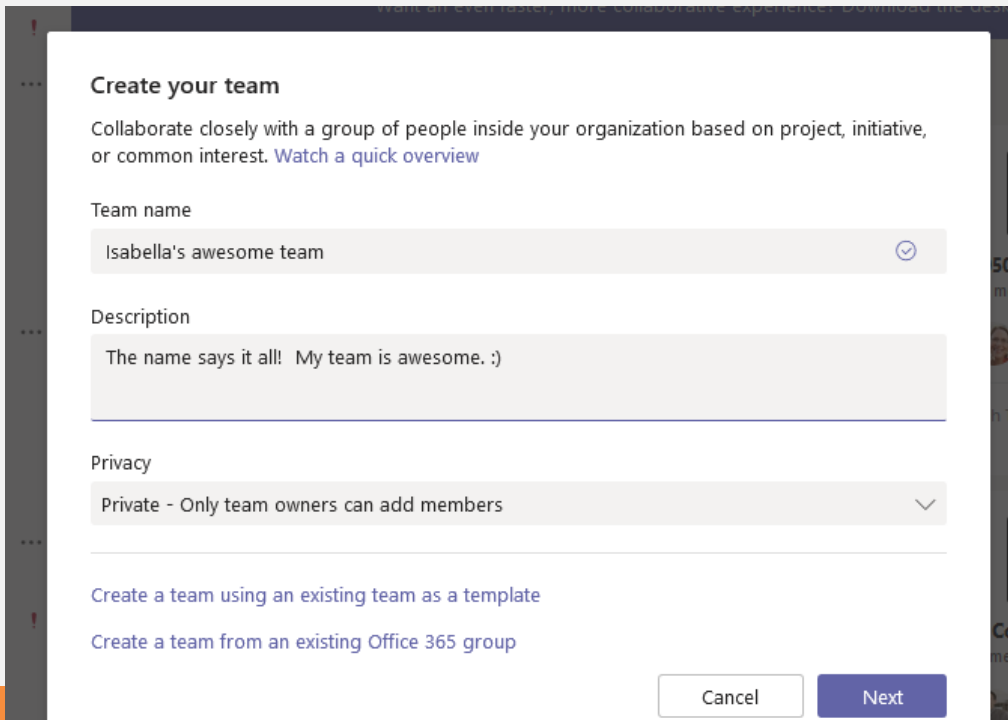

- How much control vs. adoption do you want?
- High % of regulated/sensitive content? Records management?
- BU to BU, Department to Department- who controls processes and owns content?
- Do you have power users/departments outside of IT that can help bare the burden/make this decision?

Two approaches to onboarding

- Organic onboarding – driven by your users
- IT-driven onboarding – driven by pre-identified business requirements

There is space for both approaches in many organizations

The screenshot displays the Microsoft 365 user interface with several error messages related to group creation. At the top, a dark blue banner shows the configuration key `GroupCreationAllowedGroupId` with the value `319c90a7-67ad-4bc4-83a4-759508d5da45`. Below this, the user's profile bar shows 'Adele Vance' with a green status indicator. The main content area is partially obscured by a 'Create a group' dialog box. This dialog has a 'Create' button (highlighted with a mouse cursor) and a 'Discard' button. The text 'Create a group' is followed by a description: 'A group provides a space for shared conversations, files, and a group calendar.' Below this are fields for 'Choose a name' and 'Add a description'. A large, semi-transparent error message box is overlaid on the right side of the dialog. It has a title bar with a close button (X) and the text 'Plan and Office 365 Group Creation Disabled'. The main text of the error message reads: 'Your organization's global admin has turned off the ability to create new Plans and Office 365 Groups.' There is an 'Ok' button at the bottom right of this error box. In the bottom left corner, another smaller error message box is visible, stating: 'Sorry, the ability to create groups has been turned off by the person who manages your email.' with an 'OK' button. The background shows parts of the 'People' page, including 'Edit Favorites', 'Choose how you see People', and 'People you frequently contact'.

Why Gartner

Gartner delivers the technology-related insight you need to make the right decisions, every day.

Find out more ▶

By default, anyone can create an Office 365 group. Therefore, anyone can create a team in Microsoft Teams. However, history has shown that allowing this privilege to go ungoverned can result in users creating workspaces on impulse. Such workspaces often become abandoned, because their creators fail to promote them. Ultimately, people wonder why the workplaces were created in the first place. For example, you may recall the early days of SharePoint Server. Some enterprises saw the creation of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of sites, with little thought given to why those sites were needed.

1. Assume you have a Shadow IT issue and find out how extensive it is
2. Communicate with organizational leadership to understand their needs
3. Help people overcome challenges with authorized platform through training and support
4. Offer a feedback channel and gamify the transition
5. Begin working with people to apply migration framework to content
6. Set an end date and block network access to shadow IT platforms

Summary

The Importance of IT in Cloud Success

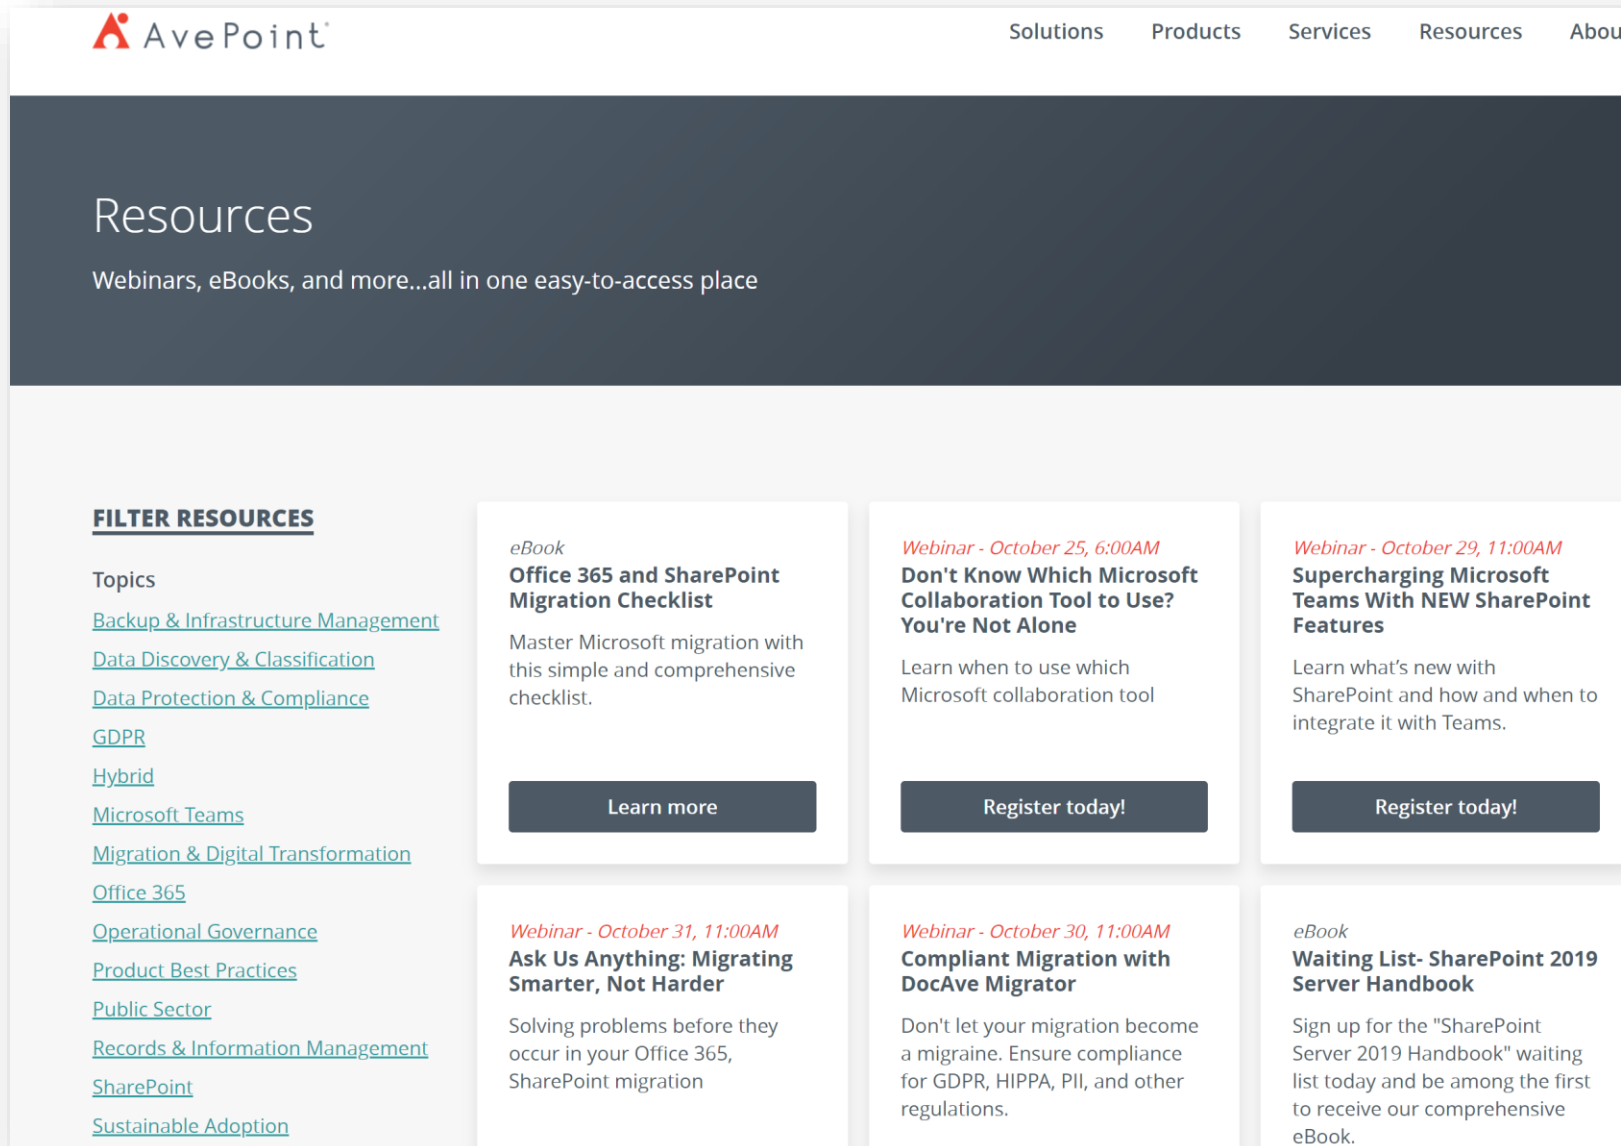

The proper application of governance and the removal of Shadow IT are key to maximizing productivity while maintain control.

McKinsey says fewer than 17% of organizations report that they are actually experiencing an increase in productivity in digital transformation.

A woman with dark hair, wearing a yellow sweater, is smiling and looking at a laptop screen. The laptop is on a desk, and there is a small potted plant with orange flowers in the background. The scene is set in a bright, modern office environment.
